BASIC TRAINING

The basic training teaches threat assessment teams how to effectively conduct a threat assessment according to best practices outlined by the United States Secret Service National Threat Assessment Center (NTAC). The goal of BTAM is to identify, engage, and work collaboratively with students and families to mitigate life situational factors contributing to thoughts of violence and aggression.

The one-day basic training workshop covers the following topics:

- Understanding school violence and implications for prevention
- What is BTAM, and what it's not.
- 8 steps in developing and operating an effective school threat assessment program
- Critical steps to conducting a thorough threat assessment process
- Tabletop Exercise - screening, inquiry/investigation/assessing and analyzing
- Developing and implementing case management plans
- Tabletop Exercise - identifying resources and creating the management plan
- Summary / Q & A

COURSE OBJECTIVES:

At the end of the course, participants will:

- Understand major facts about school violence and how prevention is possible.
- Be familiar with the principles of behavioral threat assessment and why schools should use it.
- Know how to build a threat assessment program using the 8 Steps
- Gain practice using threat assessment procedures through multiple tabletop exercises
- Understand how to work a threat assessment case
- How to screen cases to see if a threat assessment is warranted
- How to gather information from multiple sources
- How to analyze the information using 11-Key Questions
- How to make an assessment
- How to develop a case management plan to reduce risk

We highly recommend that school/district BTAM teams attend the training together. Critical team members include administrators (principals/assistant principals/deans), school psychologists, counselors, social workers, school resource officers, and law enforcement. Other important professionals can also include behavioral interventionists, special education professionals/case managers, nurses, and community mental health professionals providing services in the schools and/or those who may help work threat assessment cases.

Introduction to Restorative PRACTICES

Restorative practices are processes that emphasize the importance of establishing routines and expectations for positive student behavior and using approaches that strengthen relationships, create a respectful environment, and proactively build a community to prevent problems from arising. When problems do occur, the restorative practices approach helps to restore relationships and repair the harm caused to the school community. Join us for a half-day session focused on building positive relationships and engaging students to develop supportive school culture.

- “Whole Child” Professional Learning: Customize learning for your team around SEL and the Whole Child Approach. Whether it is an introduction, or in-depth learning and planning, we can support schools working to implement a system and structure around the Whole Child. When students are healthy, safe, supported, engaged, and challenged, they are able to learn to the best of their ability
- Setting up/Evaluating your Positive Behavioral Interventions and Supports (PBIS) System: Customize professional learning for your team on PBIS and the components that make it successful. We can support you in the review of current practices or starting the work in your school or district. Components include: Developing a behavior matrix/school-wide expectations Behavior referral form Behavior flow chart Lesson plans for teaching expectations Lesson plan schedule School-wide recognition system Behavior data collection and review Tiered interventions
- Classroom-wide PBIS Strategies: Build a foundational understanding of strategies that will help staff build positive relationships and systems of management within school settings. Each session may focus on 2-3 different strategies, depending on time and need.
- Behavior Data Collection/Reviews and Behavior Management Strategies: We can customize behavior data reviews through SWIS or support you in creating a system in Skyward. Through SWIS, (School-Wide Information System), school staff enters office discipline referrals online. The data is summarized to provide information about individual students, groups of students, or the entire student body over any time period and allows teams to review school-wide referral patterns to make improvements in the school climate and culture. We can provide Swift at SWIS training to introduce school-wide or individual staff to the purpose, features, benefits, and procedures related to implementing SWIS and build fluency using the SWIS application.
- Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs): ACEs harm children’s developing brains and lead to changing how they respond to stress and damaging their immune systems so profoundly that the effects show up decades later. ACEs cause much of our burden of chronic disease, most mental illness, and are at the root of most violence. Working together, we can help create schools, neighborhoods, communities, and a world in which every child can thrive. Contact us to plan a session to support your district or school.
- Mental Health Screening Implementation: Screening is crucial to identifying students who are at-risk due to their social-emotional needs. Just as students are screened for physical health issues during school physicals, they should also be screened for any behavioral/mental health “red flags.” Screening data provides the means to deliver proper support to students in need.
- Restorative Practices: We can customize professional learning for your staff or school leadership team on Restorative Practices. Restorative practices are processes that emphasize the importance of establishing routines and expectations for positive student behavior and using approaches that strengthen relationships, create a respectful environment, and proactively build a community to prevent problems from arising. When problems do occur, the restorative practices approach helps to restore relationships and repair the harm caused to the school community. We can support you in the review of your current practices and implementation or with the development of Restorative Practices in your school.
